RE: Nomination of Loveland City Councilor John Fogle for IAC

Dear Chairwoman Rosenworcel,

I am pleased to recommend Loveland, Colorado City Councilor John Fogle for appointment to the Commission's Intergovernmental Advisory Committee (IAC). I have known Council Fogle for many years, beginning with my time serving as a local elected official in Colorado, and through my service as legal counsel for Loveland and many other Colorado local governments on broadband, utility and rights of way issues. As someone who has advocated on behalf of local governments in this arena since the mid-1980s, I can say that John Fogle is truly one of an exceptionally qualified group of local elected officials who have both the expertise and the passion to represent the interests of local communities on these issues. John undertakes that work here in Colorado, through his service with the National League of Cities, and his prior service as a member of the IAC.

I have had the privilege of serving as a local government attorney on the IAC, and prior to that as an elected official, serving as chair of its predecessor, the Local and State Government Advisory Committee. I am confident that John Fogle will continue the positive contributions he has already made as an IAC member, and will provide valuable input to the Commission in the continuing work of the IAC. The IAC as a committee, the local government community nationally, and the Commission will be well-served by his appointment to the next iteration of the IAC.

I appreciate your consideration of this recommendation, and I wish you and your colleagues the best in continuing the great work you are doing on behalf of the American people. Thank you.

Very truly yours,

Kenneth S. Fellman
