The Honorable Ajit Pai
Chairman, Federal Communications Commission

Washington, DC 20554

Dear Mr. Pai,

I am writing to endorse the application of John Fogle, a member of City Council of Loveland, Colorado, for a position on the Intergovernmental Advisory Committee of the FCC.

I worked with Councilor Fogle for almost six years in our community's efforts to bring fiber-optic broadband services to Loveland. The construction of our network is now underway, and John continues to support and advice City Council on this project.

My role as a citizen-supporter of the project was primarily informative, analytical and persuasive. John contributed both through his public advocacy, and by staying informed as a representative on the National League of Cities' Information, Technology and Communications Advisory Committee for the past five-and-a-half years. John attended almost every meeting of that advisory committee, and brought a national perspective back to all of us here in Loveland.

I will add that having worked continuously and extremely closely with John on the broadband project, I know that he is an all-in, active, committed public servant. Loveland's Council was divided for a long time about whether to proceed, and I credit John Fogle for working with the City Manager and other Council members to get to Yes. He is informed and effective, and always searches for solutions that advance community goals by satisfying the diverse interests that are represented in our City Council.

I am confident that John would be an excellent IAC member and contributor. I hope you will consider both his experience and his effectiveness when deciding who should be appointed to the IAC this cycle.

With kind regards,

Roger Ison
