Dear Mr. Ajit Pai, Chairman
Federal Communications Commission
445 12th Street, SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Mr. Pai,

With this letter, I expressly endorse City Councilor, John Fogle's application to serve upon the Intergovernmental Advisory Committee of the Federal Communications Commission.

The City of Loveland recently implemented its first Municipal Fiber Utility, which will bring affordable, fast, and reliable internet to our 80,000 residents. Councilor John Fogle has been closely involved with this effort for the past six-years, helping bring it to fruition. He has served as a Council Liaison to the Loveland Communications and Advisory Board and on the National League of Cities, Information, Technology, and Communications Advisory Committee for over five-years. With his nearly perfect attendance at Committee meetings, Councilor Fogle has demonstrated his interest and commitment in this area.

The Loveland City Council is comprised of councilmembers with varying and diverse viewpoints. Councilor Fogle has shown his ability to work with his fellow councilmembers to identify common goals and work towards solutions. Councilor Fogle always takes an active role in any endeavor he pursues, so I am confident he will be an engaged and participatory committee member. Recently elected to another four-year term, Councilor Fogle has been endorsed as a representative of our community moving into the future.

This is Councilor Fogle's second application for a Committee position, which only further establishes his dedication in contributing to this Committee and representing mid-size communities across the nation. We thank you for your consideration of John Fogle, Loveland City Councilor and dedicated public servant, for this role.

Sincerely,

Stephen C. Adams
City Manager, City of Loveland
